WILLIAM J. BRAN, who when no greater man lives, is an alumnus of the college, located at Jacksonville, Fla., last fall his college celebrated its 75th anniversary, and all large colleges from the University of California to Yale were represented. However very little interest had been taken in the college by the town people and on account of lack of funds, the President of the Institution was in the act of resigning. He was doing so, however, he offered $5,000 of the college could raise the same amount, which was an important thing. The trustees met for a week and they planned the cause of the school, that great leader among men and his very presence in Jacksonville, seemed much interest. People who were then time taken, refused to go hear a prominent and eloquent student. He then turned out on campus and he began to plead the cause of the Alma Mater. This lecture on the Value of an Ideal was heard by one of the largest audiences ever assembled there and upon being made chairman of the trustees, he raised $50,000 with such effort. Jacksonville is a republican town and Bryan a "Dead Republican," but he went away, was heartily commended, and now Illinois College, which seemed doomed to go down, is again on the highway to success, because of his illustrations, since, he has been in distress, and lifted her out of poverty.

Judge J. C. Chensault was in Pittsburg, Pa., a few days last week on business.

Mr. Harvey Chensault, of Conway, a magnificent success, for all who know Miss Belle, know that what she does is what she does well. Miss Belle thought the routine cast of characters far superior to anything she had ever seen. Each and every acted his or her part well. Miss Belle was the satisfaction that the play was repeated Saturday night, and Sunday night, and Monday night. They could hardly find a single word to criticize. The play was a treat. Mr. McDevitt, of his excellent treatment of some of his interesting characters.
